Description

Report on “Workshop on Fabric Selection & Color Theory”

Organized by: Fashion Club, KL University, Vijayawada

Date: 25th July 2025

Venue: Peacock Hall, KL University.

The Fashion Club of KL University successfully conducted an insightful and creatively enriching workshop titled “Fabric Selection & Color Theory” on the 25th of July 2025. Held at Peacock Hall, the event brought together enthusiastic students from diverse academic backgrounds who shared a common interest in design, aesthetics, and creativity.

Objective:

The primary objective of the workshop was to educate participants on the fundamentals of fabric types and the art of color coordination. The session aimed to enhance students’ understanding of how different fabrics behave and how color theory plays a vital role in creating visually compelling and functional designs. By combining theoretical explanations with practical demonstrations, the workshop offered a hands-on learning experience that connected classroom knowledge with real-world applications.

Event Highlights:

- Introduction to Fabrics:
- Covered natural, synthetic, and blended fabrics.
- Discussed properties like texture, weight, stretchability, and drape.
- Hands-on experience with fabric swatches for tactile learning.
- Color Theory Session:
- Explained key elements: hue, saturation, value, and complementary colors.
- Discussed emotional and psychological effects of color.
- Live demonstration using a color wheel for visual understanding.
- Group Activity:
- Students worked collaboratively with fabric samples.
- Created mini design boards using varied textures and colors.
- Encouraged practical application of learned concepts.

Conclusion & Reflections:

- Interactive discussion on insights and takeaways.
- Students expressed increased confidence and understanding.
- Reinforced both technical knowledge and creative exploration.
