Clay Workshop

Organized by KL School of Architecture, Vijayawada

Date of the Event: 23/8/2025

Introduction

KL School of Architecture, Vijayawada, organized an Eco-Friendly Ganesh Initiative on the occasion of Ganesh Chaturthi (Vinayaka Chaviti) with the aim of promoting sustainability and environmental responsibility among the students. Recognizing that architects play a vital role in shaping a greener future, the initiative was designed to instill awareness about adopting eco-conscious practices in cultural celebrations.

Objectives of the Event

1. To create awareness among students about the environmental hazards caused by non-biodegradable idols.
2. To encourage the adoption of sustainable practices during traditional festivities.
3. To provide hands-on experience in crafting clay idols, symbolizing a step towards responsible celebrations.
4. To instill a sense of responsibility in future architects for integrating sustainability into everyday practices.

Event Highlights & Activities

- A Clay Workshop was conducted where students actively participated in making eco-friendly Ganesh idols.
- Faculty members guided the students in understanding the importance of natural, biodegradable materials.
- The activity fostered creativity, collaboration, and an eco-conscious mindset among participants.

Outcomes of the Event

- Students gained practical exposure to sustainable alternatives for celebrations.
- The workshop enhanced their awareness of eco-friendly materials and their impact on the environment.
- A sense of responsibility and ownership towards sustainable living was instilled among the participants.
- The initiative highlighted the role of architects as agents of positive social and environmental change.

Conclusion

The Eco-Friendly Ganesh Initiative successfully achieved its purpose of spreading awareness on sustainability and environmental responsibility. By engaging students in a meaningful, hands-on workshop, the event not only celebrated the festive spirit of Ganesh Chaturthi but also encouraged adopting eco-friendly practices. KL School of Architecture continues to uphold its commitment to nurturing responsible, socially conscious architects
