Objective:

The objective of Awareness on Immunization to Villagers is to educate rural communities about the importance of timely vaccinations for preventing diseases. It aims to dispel myths and misconceptions surrounding immunization. By promoting trust in healthcare systems, the initiative encourages villagers to actively participate in vaccination drives. Ultimately, it seeks to build a healthier, disease-free rural population.

Description:

Under the guidance of KL University's National Service Scheme (NSS) and the College of Pharmacy, volunteers conducted an awareness campaign on immunization in Pedakonduru village of Duggirala Mandal. Volunteers went door-to-door educating pregnant women, new mothers, children, and the elderly about the importance of timely vaccinations. The initiative aimed to improve health awareness and encourage preventive care in the rural community. Dr. R. Supriya, Professor from the Pharmacy Department, along with NSS Program Coordinator Dr. P.Srikanth Reddy and Field Coordinator Mr. P. Suresh, led the campaign. Their efforts were highly appreciated by the University Vice-Chancellor Dr. Parthasaradhi Varma. Pro Vice-Chancellors Dr. A.V.S. Prasad, Dr. K. Rajasekhara Rao, and Dr. N. Venkataram, along with Dean Student Affairs Dr. K.R.S.Prasad and Advisor Dr. Habibullah Khan, also congratulated the volunteers. The program emphasized the university's commitment to community health and public service. It served as a bridge between healthcare awareness and rural outreach.

Outcome:

The event successfully increased awareness among villagers about the importance of immunization for all age groups. Many families expressed interest in following vaccination schedules and seeking medical guidance. The initiative fostered a stronger connection between healthcare knowledge and rural well-being.

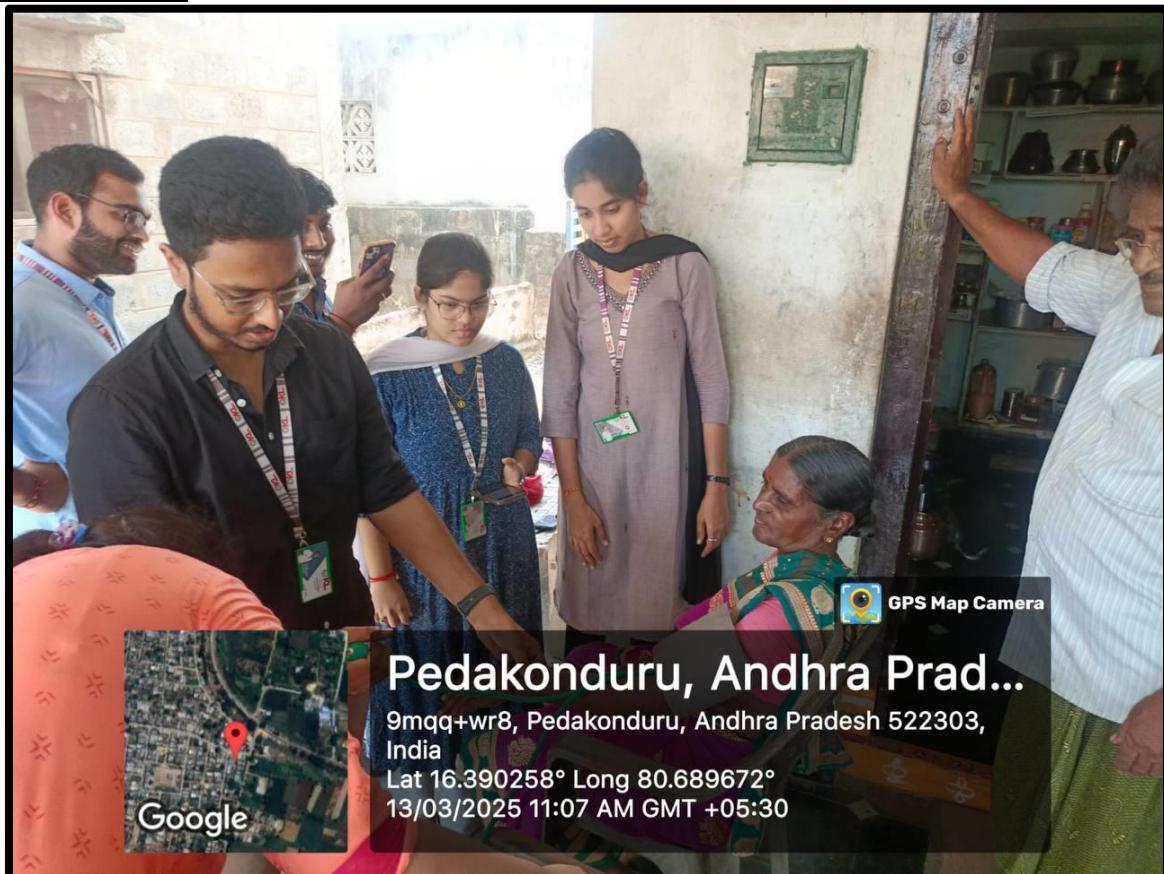

Impact on Society:

The event positively impacted society by promoting a culture of preventive healthcare in rural areas. It helped reduce vaccine hesitancy and encouraged community members to prioritize regular immunization. This initiative contributed to building a healthier and more informed rural population.
