Outcomes of the workshop:

After completing the aforementioned program, participants should have gained,

- The ability to evaluate existing literature
- Formulate hypotheses, set up research designs, and understand the function
- and applicability of data collection and analysis methods.

Session-1: By Dr.J.K.R. Sastry, Professor, Dept. of IoT, KLEF.

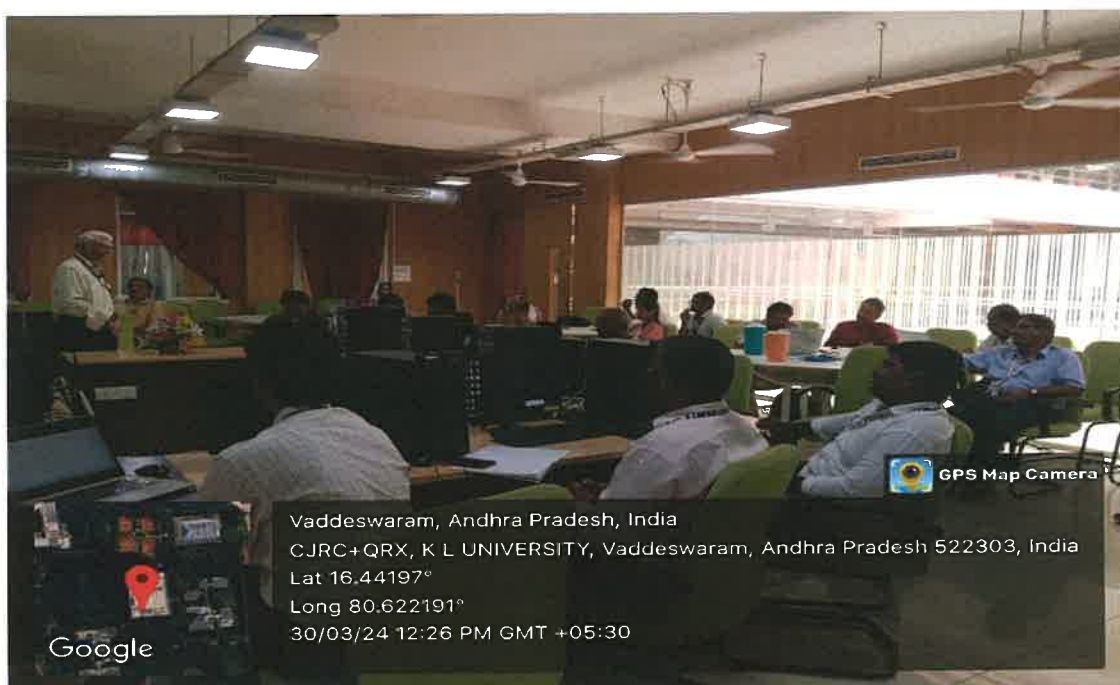

Dr.J.K.R Sastry garu addressing the participants

The session covered the significance of research in both academia and business. Dr. Sastry emphasized that it takes a lot of research expertise and work to write a high-quality research paper. However, a lack of requisite knowledge and abilities prevents a number of academic faculty and researchers from publishing high-quality research papers. He gave a comprehensive explanation on the topic: how to publish in high-impact journal: strategies & steps. The session began by stressing how crucial it is to have a precise and organized research plan before starting to write.

The session also emphasized the necessity of doing a thorough literature evaluation to make sure that the research is pertinent to the area of study and adds value to the body of current knowledge. Dr. Sastry covered the range of publication possibilities for research, such as open-access platforms, conference proceedings, and traditional academic journals. He underlined that when selecting a publishing outlet, researchers should carefully assess the impact factor, peer review procedure, and publication price structure. Overall, the session was interesting and informative for all attendees because of the insightful perspectives and useful advice on how to publish research successfully.

Session-2: By Dr. B. Nageswara Rao, Professor, Dept of ME, KLEF.

Dr. Nageswara Rao garu addressing the participants

Session-2 gave a comprehensive explanation on the topic: Understanding the process of publication. The session began by outlining the significance of starting the study process with a precise and well-defined research plan. It highlighted how important it is to decide on the research topics, the target population, and the best study design and methodology. Subsequently, the session discussed several research methods, such as mixed, qualitative, and quantitative approaches including thorough descriptions of each technique, outlining its advantages and disadvantages as well as the situations in which it works best.

Dr. Nageswara Rao emphasized the significance of ethical factors in research, such as informed permission, participant protection, and confidentiality. Additionally, it was made clear to the participants that in order to guarantee that the research is thorough, research papers must have a clear and well-written methodology section.

Session-3: By Dr. Debanath Bhattacharya, Professor, Department of CSE.

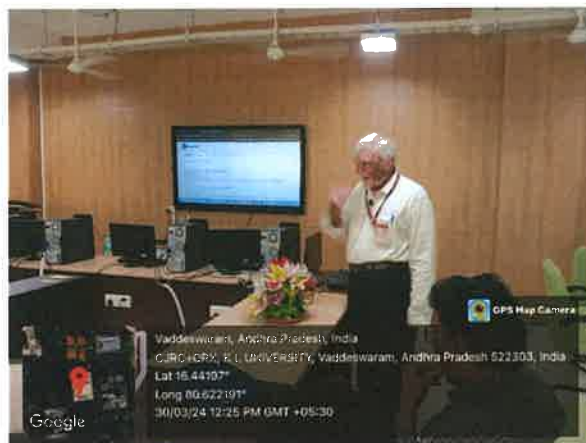

Dr. Bhattacharya addressing the participants

Dr. Bhattacharya emphasized that one should start writing the research paper after doing enough research or have sufficient knowledge about the topic about to write. Procrastination is a common obstacle for writers, so it's important to set deadlines or goals to begin writing and stick to them. One should have completed sufficient data collection, analysis, and synthesis of findings. This ensures a comprehensive understanding of the research topic and can effectively communicate the findings. The primary purpose of writing a research paper is to contribute new knowledge to the field of study. Consider the originality and significance of the research findings and their potential impact on the academic community.

Choose a research topic that is original, relevant, and of interest to the academic peers and stakeholders. The research question should address a gap in the existing literature and contribute to advancing knowledge in the chosen field. Research paper should be structured according to the conventions of discipline, including an abstract, introduction, literature review, methodology, results, discussion, and conclusion. The session also emphasized that considering the scope, audience, and impact factor of potential journals or conferences for publishing the research paper will have a strong reputation within the field.
