Subject: List of faculty identified for Full Stack Development Course Training

Dear HoDs & Principals,

Attached is the list of 120 faculty finalised through HoDs and Cohort Professor Incharges for training them in the Full Stack Development Course & Cloud DevOps course for the upcoming 2024-25 EVEN SEM and 2025-26 ODD SEM. Kindly inform the faculty about the same and advise them to be available for all further trainings related to these course effectively. These 120 faculty will play a crucial role in delivering these course to more than 91 sections each semester across the entire University and hence their commitment towards this learning must be upright and HoDs are advised to ensure that they constantly monitor the progress of the faculty in these courses. A list of self-learning courses are provided below which they will have to commence learning immediately and in parallel so that once they reach a level of confidence, we will then provide them with physical trainings from industry experts. These trainings will help faculty upskill tremendously in these domains and hence they should pay utmost attention towards these learnings.

@Principal-ASC is advised to have a dedicated team to closely monitor the upskilling of these faculty to ensure that they are competent in delivering the classes and working on projects related to these courses.

Introduction

The Faculty Development Program (FDP) on Full Stack Development was organized at the Vijayawada Campus with the objective of enhancing the technical and practical knowledge of faculty members in modern web development technologies. This FDP aimed to equip participants with the skills to build complete web applications, understand full-stack architecture, and incorporate these skills into their curriculum. Mr. P. Sambasiva Rao, a senior trainer from EXCELR with extensive experience in the field, led the sessions.

Objectives of the FDP

The main objectives of the program were:

1. To provide an understanding of the core concepts and best practices in Full Stack Development.
2. To equip faculty members with practical skills in frontend and backend development, enhancing their ability to teach these technologies effectively.
3. To encourage the integration of industry-relevant skills into academic curricula, helping students become more job-ready.

4. To facilitate hands-on experience in building web applications, managing databases, and deploying projects to live environments.

Content and Topics Covered

The FDP covered a comprehensive curriculum designed to introduce and advance participants' skills in various Full Stack Development domains. The course content included:

1. Frontend Development

- HTML, CSS, and JavaScript: Fundamentals of web design and styling, essential for creating responsive and visually appealing user interfaces. Frameworks and Libraries: Introduction to popular frontend frameworks like React and Angular, focusing on component-based architecture, reusable UI elements, and efficient state management.

2. Backend Development

- Server-Side Programming: Overview of Node.js and Express, explaining server architecture, routing, and handling HTTP requests.
- API Development: Basics of RESTful API design, integrating backend services with frontend applications.

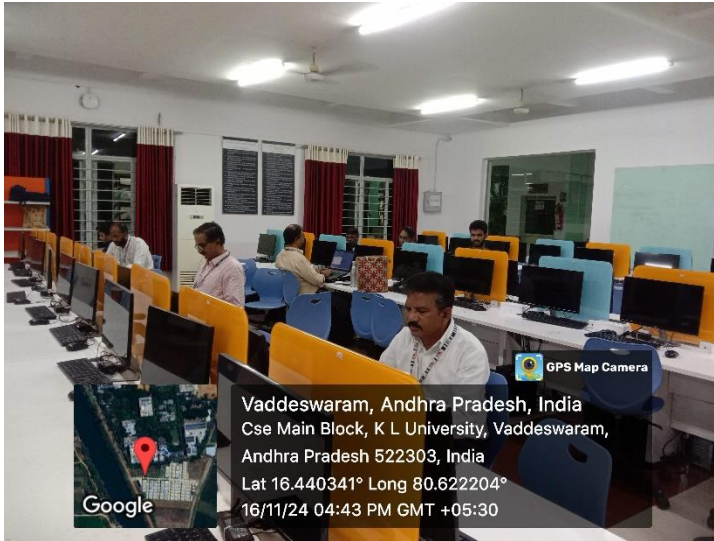

3. Database Management

- Database Systems: Introduction to SQL and NoSQL databases, specifically focusing on MySQL and MongoDB.
- Data Handling and Security: Covering CRUD operations, data integrity, and database security practices to manage application data effectively.

4. Deployment and DevOps

- Version Control and Deployment: Use of Git and GitHub for version control, and an introduction to deployment on platforms like Heroku and AWS.

- Continuous Integration/Continuous Deployment (CI/CD): Best practices for automating deployment pipelines.

5. Project Work and Practical Applications

- Building a Complete Web Application: Participants worked in groups to create a small, functional web application, applying all aspects of frontend and backend development.
- Debugging and Optimization: Techniques for troubleshooting, debugging, and optimizing applications for better performance and user experience.

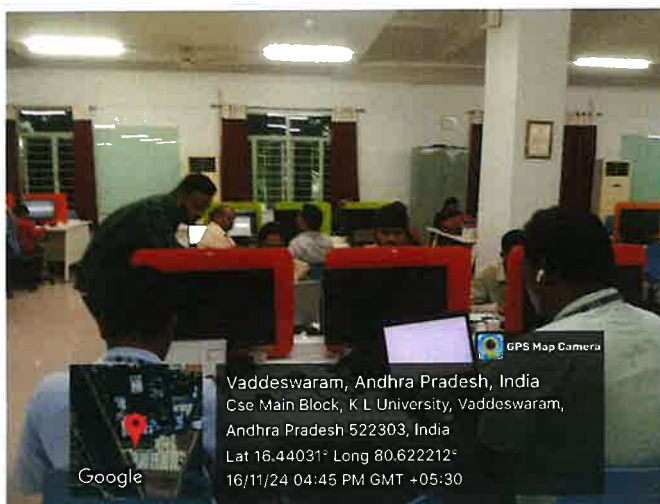

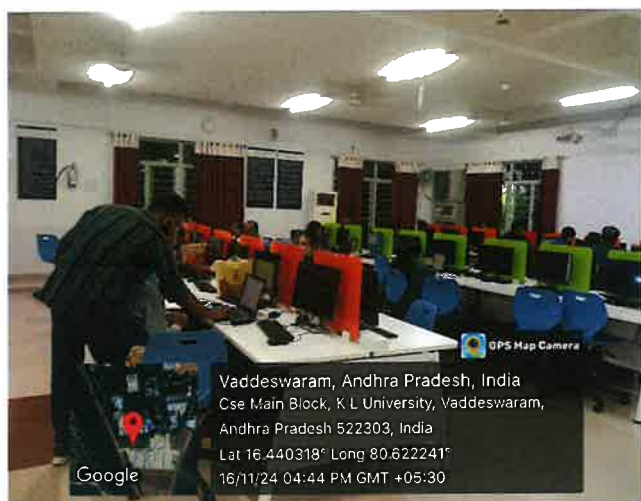

Highlights of the FDP

- Experienced Resource Person: Mr. P. Sambasiva Rao brought valuable industry insights, covering key aspects of Full Stack Development with practical examples.
- Hybrid Learning Model: The mix of offline and online sessions allowed faculty to balance learning with their regular teaching responsibilities while benefiting from both hands-on and theory-based instruction.
- Hands-On Training: The program emphasized a hands-on approach, with participants actively engaged in coding exercises, developing real-world applications, and working on projects that closely resemble industry practices.
- Collaborative Learning Environment: Participants were encouraged to work in groups for practical sessions, fostering collaboration and problem-solving skills.

Participant Feedback and Outcomes

Faculty members appreciated the practical orientation of the FDP and found the content to be highly relevant for teaching Full Stack Development. The hands-on approach and project-based learning helped build confidence in implementing full-stack concepts. Some specific feedback points included:

- Enhanced Technical Skills: Participants reported significant improvement in their coding skills, especially in JavaScript and API development.
- Improved Teaching Methodologies: Faculty members felt more equipped to integrate full-stack topics into their teaching with practical, industry-relevant examples.
- Industry-Relevant Knowledge: The focus on trending technologies, such as Node.js, MongoDB, and CI/CD practices, provided faculty with insights into current industry demands.

Conclusion and Recommendations

The FDP on Full Stack Development was successful in equipping faculty members with the knowledge and skills to teach web development effectively. Participants gained confidence in frontend and backend development and are now better prepared to develop curricula that meet current industry standards.

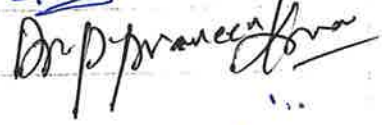

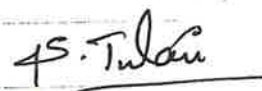

Recommendations for Future Programs:

1. Extended Duration for In-Depth Learning: Given the vast scope of Full Stack Development, a longer program could allow for deeper exploration of each topic.
2. Follow-Up Workshops: Periodic workshops focusing on advanced topics or project reviews could reinforce learning and update faculty on new technologies.
3. Hands-on Projects: More extended project work with guidance could be included to solidify practical knowledge.

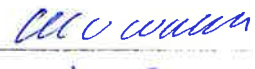

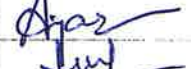

This FDP has set a strong foundation for further training programs aimed at keeping faculty members abreast of rapid technological advancements in web development.
