Date: 02-08-2025

Resource Persons:

Dr. Pavan Kumar Bada, Assistant Professor, Value Education Cell, KLEF

Mrs. J. Rajeswari, Psychologist, Value Education Cell, KLEF

Mrs. Sankari S, Psychologist, Value Education Cell, KLEF

An Awareness Programme on “Early Detection of Student Psychological Challenges” was organized for the newly joined faculty members of KLEF on 02-08-2025. The programme aimed to sensitize faculty members to the importance of student mental health and to equip them with the knowledge and skills required to recognize early signs of psychological distress among students.

The program was inaugurated by Dr. I. Govardhani, Principal, Academic Staff College. In the inaugural address, she stated that in the current academic environment, students often face pressures related to academic performance, personal expectations, and social adjustments. Hence, the session was arranged which highlight the crucial role faculty members play in identifying and addressing such challenges at an early stage.

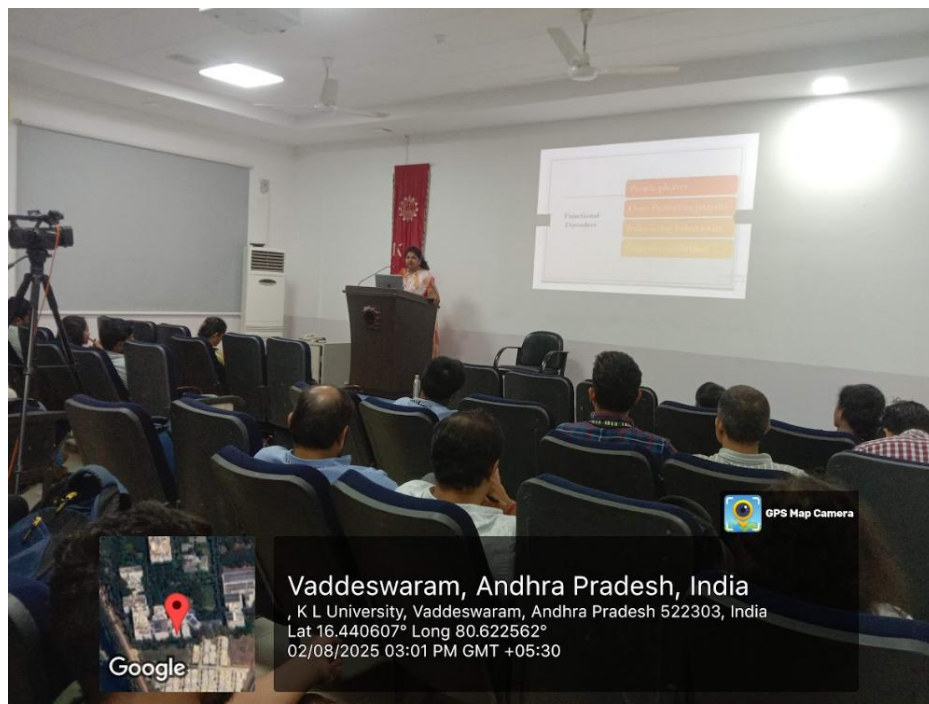

The session was continued by Dr. Pavan Kumar Bada, Head of the Department, Value Education Cell. He explained the common psychological challenges faced by students, including anxiety, stress, depression, academic burnout, and social adjustment issues.

The session emphasized how subtle behavioral changes such as withdrawal from class participation, sudden decline in academic performance, mood fluctuations, and irregular attendance may indicate underlying psychological concerns. He also discussed the importance of maintaining a supportive and empathetic approach when interacting with students who may be experiencing emotional difficulties.

Mrs. J. Rajeswari, psychology counsellor, Value Education Cell, further elaborated on strategies that faculty members can adopt to support students effectively. She explained how faculty can initiate constructive conversations, build trust with students, and encourage them to seek professional counselling when necessary.

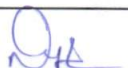

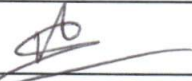

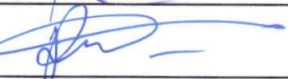

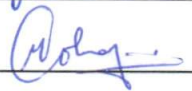

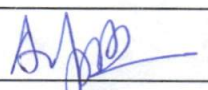

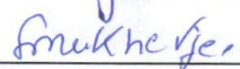

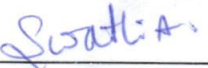

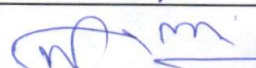

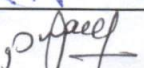

The session also provided insights into the counselling support services available at the Value Education Cell (VEC), KLEF, and how faculty members can refer students to appropriate support mechanisms. The programme concluded with an interactive discussion where participants shared observations and experiences related to student well-being and mental health.
