The programme aimed to encourage faculty members to actively participate in externally funded research projects and strengthen the research culture within the institution.

3. Target Audience

Faculty members from CSE and Allied branches interested in pursuing research projects and external funding opportunities.

4. Brief Report of the Programme

A One-Day Workshop on “Exploring Funding Opportunities and Research Proposal Writing” was organized on 15 November 2025 from 9:30 AM to 12:30 PM at Rose Hall. The programme aimed to create awareness among faculty members about various national and international research funding opportunities and to provide guidance on preparing effective research proposals. The session was conducted by Dr. Arun Mehta, Associate Dean – R&D, Sponsored Research, KLEF, who served as the resource person for the workshop.

The programme commenced with a welcome address by Dr. Ch. Radhika Rani, Principal, Academic Staff College. In her address, she warmly welcomed the resource person and faculty participants and emphasized the importance of strengthening the research culture within the institution. She highlighted that faculty engagement in funded research projects significantly contributes to academic excellence, innovation, and institutional development. She encouraged the participants to actively explore funding opportunities and develop quality research proposals that address contemporary societal and technological challenges.

Following the welcome address, Dr. Tirupathi Reddy, Head of the Department of Computer Science and Engineering, delivered the opening remarks. He emphasized the growing importance of externally funded research projects in higher education institutions. He pointed out that securing research funding not only enhances the research profile of the university but also supports faculty members in advancing their academic careers. He encouraged faculty members to actively participate in research initiatives and collaborate with interdisciplinary teams to develop impactful research proposals.

The main session was delivered by Dr. Arun Mehta, who provided a comprehensive overview of various research funding agencies, including government organizations, industry partners, and international bodies. He explained the different types of funding schemes available for faculty members and highlighted the importance of understanding the objectives and thematic priorities of each funding call before preparing a proposal.

During the session, the resource person elaborated on several key aspects related to research funding and proposal development. He discussed the structure and components of an effective research proposal, including defining the research problem, formulating clear objectives, designing a sound methodology, and aligning the proposed research outcomes with the priorities of the funding agency. He also emphasized the importance of presenting a well-structured proposal with clear justification, expected outcomes, and societal impact.

Dr. Mehta further explained the eligibility criteria for Principal Investigators (PI) and Co-Principal Investigators (Co-PI) and the roles and responsibilities associated with these positions. He highlighted the importance of collaboration among faculty members from different disciplines to address complex research problems and increase the chances of securing funding.

Another important aspect of the session was the discussion on special funding opportunities available for women researchers and early-career faculty members. The resource person encouraged eligible faculty members to explore these schemes and actively participate in research initiatives. He also provided information on how faculty members can stay updated about active funding calls and submission deadlines.

In addition, Dr. Mehta explained the proposal submission process, including the necessary approvals from the university's R&D department, documentation requirements, and guidelines for proposal submission through online portals. He also guided the participants on whom to contact within the institution for clarifications, administrative support, and coordination during proposal preparation and submission.

The session was highly interactive, and faculty members actively engaged with the resource person by asking questions related to funding opportunities, proposal structuring, and research collaboration. The workshop helped participants gain valuable insights into the strategies for preparing competitive research proposals and identifying suitable funding schemes.

5. Outcomes of the Programme
