Report on Three Day FDP on “Drafting Scientific Manuscripts and Publishing Strategies in the Field of Architecture and Urban Studies”

Organized by: Academic Staff College in association with School of Architecture, KLEF.

Dates: 26-11-2025 to 28-11-2025

Venue: Online Mode.

Resource Persons:

- 1.Dr. Harsimran Kaur, Assistant Professor and Former Head, Department of Architecture, Planning & Design, IIT (BHU), Varanasi.
- 2.Dr. Niranjika Wijesooriya Gunarathne, Lecturer, Sydney School of Architecture, The University of Sydney, Australia.
- 3.Dr. Binit Kumar, Assistant Professor, National Institute of Technology, Rourkela.

A Three-Day Faculty Development Programme (FDP) on “Drafting Scientific Manuscripts and Publishing Strategies in the Field of Architecture and Urban Studies” was conducted in virtual mode from 26-11-2025 to 28-11-2025 by the Academic Staff College, KLEF, in association with the School of Architecture. The programme was specifically designed for faculty members and researchers from the Departments of Architecture and Civil Engineering. This FDP aimed to enhance the research and publication skills of participants by providing in-depth knowledge of manuscript preparation, publication processes, and the overall journey of publishing an academic paper from the reviewers’ and editors’ perspectives. The sessions offered valuable insights into academic writing standards, journal expectations, and strategies to improve research visibility and impact.

The programme featured distinguished resource persons including Dr. Harsimran Kaur (IIT (BHU), Varanasi), Dr. Niranjika Wijesooriya Gunarathne (The University of Sydney, Australia), and Dr. Binit Kumar (NIT Rourkela). Each expert contributed their domain knowledge and experience to provide a comprehensive understanding of the publishing ecosystem, making the FDP highly informative and practically relevant.

Day 1 (26-11-2025): Foundations of Scientific Writing and Reviewer's Perspective – Dr. Harsimran Kaur

The first day of the FDP focused on building a strong foundation in scientific manuscript writing, with an emphasis on understanding how research work should be structured and presented effectively. Dr. Harsimran Kaur began the session by explaining the essential components of a research paper, including title formulation, abstract writing, introduction framing, literature review integration, methodology description, results presentation, and conclusion development. She highlighted the importance of clarity, logical sequencing, and maintaining coherence throughout the manuscript to ensure readability and academic rigor.

A significant portion of the session was dedicated to understanding the reviewer's perspective in the peer review process. Dr. Kaur explained how reviewers assess manuscripts based on originality, relevance to the field, methodological soundness, clarity of arguments, and contribution to existing knowledge. She discussed common pitfalls such as weak problem statements, poor organization, lack of novelty, and improper referencing, which often lead to rejection. Participants were provided with practical guidelines on improving writing quality, avoiding plagiarism, and maintaining ethical standards in research. The session also included examples of well-written and poorly structured manuscripts to help participants identify best practices. Interactive discussions allowed participants to clarify their doubts regarding manuscript preparation and reviewer expectations.

Day 2 (27-11-2025): Publication Process and Editor's Perspective – Dr. Niranjika Wijesooriya

The second day focused on understanding the publication process from the editor's perspective, delivered by Dr. Niranjika Wijesooriya Gunarathne. The session began with an overview of the academic publishing landscape, including different types of journals, indexing databases, and impact metrics. Participants were guided on selecting appropriate journals based on the scope of their research, target audience, and publication goals. The importance of aligning manuscript content with journal guidelines and aims was strongly emphasized.

Dr. Niranjika elaborated on the editorial workflow, explaining how manuscripts are initially screened by editors before being sent for peer review. She discussed key factors that influence editorial decisions, such as novelty, clarity, adherence to guidelines, and overall quality of the manuscript. The session also covered essential aspects of manuscript submission, including formatting, preparation of cover letters, and ethical declarations.

A major highlight of the session was understanding how to effectively respond to reviewer comments and revise manuscripts. Participants were trained on drafting response letters, addressing critical feedback constructively, and maintaining professionalism during the revision process. Real-life examples were shared to illustrate common challenges faced during publication and strategies to overcome them. The session provided participants with a clear roadmap of the publishing process, from submission to final decision, enhancing their confidence in navigating academic publishing.

Day 3 (28-11-2025): Advanced Publishing Strategies and Handling Revisions – Dr. Binit Kumar

The third day of the FDP, led by Dr. Binit Kumar, focused on advanced strategies for successful publication and managing the final stages of the publishing process. The session began with a discussion on common reasons for manuscript rejection, such as lack of novelty, poor research design, inadequate data analysis, and failure to meet journal expectations. Dr. Kumar emphasized the importance of conducting high-quality research and presenting it effectively to improve acceptance rates.

The session provided detailed guidance on handling reviewer comments and revising manuscripts. Participants were introduced to systematic approaches for addressing feedback, including categorizing comments, providing clear justifications, and making necessary revisions without compromising research integrity. Dr. Kumar highlighted the importance of maintaining a positive and professional attitude while responding to reviewers, even in cases of critical feedback.

In addition, the session covered advanced topics such as publication ethics, avoiding predatory journals, and enhancing research visibility through indexing and citations. Strategies for improving citation impact, networking with researchers, and collaborating on interdisciplinary research were also discussed. The session concluded with practical tips on maintaining consistency in research output and developing a long-term publication strategy. An interactive Q&A session allowed participants to discuss their research challenges and gain personalized guidance from the expert.

The screenshot displays a Google Meet session. The main window shows a presentation slide by Dr. Harshman Kaur. The slide is titled "Assessing and Mitigating Urban Heat Island (UHI) Effects in Riverine Cities" and includes a diagram illustrating the UHI effect and its mitigation strategies. The diagram shows a central black arrow pointing down, with five colored arrows (blue, green, yellow, orange, red) pointing up from it. Each colored arrow is associated with a specific effect or mitigation strategy. The slide also lists research objectives and a funding source from CSIR-UGC for 3 years.

The 'People' list on the right shows participants: Dr. Harshman Kaur (presenting), Sathya Vuddemarry, Sami Ur Rehman, Shivendu Singh (Meeting host), Shrawz, Snehasree Nimmagadda, and Vikashmi bondlapati. The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the time as 2:24 PM and the date as 11/26/2023.

Formulating a Research Problem

- Research Problem refers to some difficulty that a researcher experiences in a theoretical or practical situation and wants to obtain a solution.
- Formulating a research problem is the initial stage of research.
- Curiosity, creativity, observation, information, general knowledge, etc., guide us to new ideas.
- Focus, concentration, and commitment are more important at this stage.
