The workshop, titled “Design Your Life Through Design Thinking – An Approach for Future Professionals,” was conducted in offline mode from 09:00 A.M. to 04:00 P.M. at Jasmine Hall, KLEF. A total of 190 participants, comprising 94 students and 39 faculty and staff members from the MDI&E and Mechanical Engineering departments, participated in the program.

The workshop began with an introductory address by the speaker, welcoming all the participants and introducing the invited resource person, Lt. Gen. Dr. Anil Kapoor (Retd.), Principal of the Academic Staff College, Dr. Radhika Rani Chintala, the Head of the Department, Dr. Narashima Raju, and Dr. Diplesh Gautam, Assistant Professor, MDI&E were invited onto the dais. The program was formally inaugurated with the lighting of the lamp.

After the lighting of the lamp, the speaker introduced the resource person, Lt. Gen. Prof. (Dr.) Anil Kapoor (Retd.), following which Lt. Gen. Prof. (Dr.) Anil Kapoor (Retd.), began his presentation on “Design Your Life Through Design Thinking – An Approach for Future Professionals.”. The workshop on “Design Your Life Through Design Thinking – An Approach for Future Professionals” delivered transformative insights into applying design thinking principles to personal and professional growth. The resource person, Lt. Gen. Dr. Anil Kapoor guided participants through practical methodologies for purposeful living, creative problem-solving, and strategic leadership in an uncertain world.

The session framed life as a design challenge, encouraging participants to approach it with empathy, clarity, and creativity. It emphasized understanding oneself and others, defining a clear core purpose, and exploring bold possibilities without fear of failure. Participants were guided to think like designers—generating ideas, taking small actionable steps, and learning through experimentation rather than waiting for perfect conditions.

The POISE framework—Purpose, Opportunity, Innovation, Skill, and Explore—provided a practical structure to translate vision into action. By aligning personal goals with emerging opportunities and continuously building skills, participants were inspired to cultivate resilience, curiosity, and an innovation-driven mindset for both personal and professional growth.

Participants learned the value of self-awareness tools such as the Johari Window to uncover blind spots, reduce biases, and build stronger interpersonal trust. The power of catalytic “Wow” questions—“How might we...?” and “What if...?”—was highlighted to reframe limitations, spark creativity, and create psychological safety for breakthrough thinking.

Deep empathy techniques, including the 5 Whys, helped uncover root motivations and unmet needs, preventing superficial solutions in both life and career decisions. The discussion stressed that thoughts shape boundaries of action: adopting a growth mindset and high self-efficacy unlocks bold experimentation and radical alternatives.

A strong never-give-up attitude—the “1% edge” of consistent grit, small daily improvements, and perseverance—was presented as the hallmark of enduring success. Design thinking’s iterative nature mirrors life’s need for learning from failure, relentless refinement, and purpose-fueled persistence.

The interactive session encouraged participants to consciously design their thinking before taking action, emphasizing that clarity of thought precedes meaningful results. It highlighted the importance of integrating both critical analysis and creative imagination—adopting a whole-brain approach to decision-making. By balancing logic with innovation, participants were guided to develop well-rounded perspectives that enable robust, thoughtful, and future-ready decisions in both academic and professional contexts.

Lt. Gen. Dr. Anil Kapoor actively engaged with the attendees throughout the session, creating a dynamic and reflective learning environment. He addressed queries with practical insights drawn from his vast experience and inspired participants to “think like professionals of action while acting like professionals of thought.” His interaction reinforced the value of disciplined thinking, ethical leadership, and purposeful execution.

At the conclusion of the session, feedback was collected from all participants. The responses reflected high appreciation for the session’s practical relevance, motivational depth, and engaging delivery. Many participants expressed that the content was not only inspiring but also immediately applicable to their personal and professional growth.

Following the workshop, the resource person was felicitated by Dr. Ch. Radhika Rani, Principal of the Academic Staff College, and Prof. Dr. Narshima Raju.
