Introduction

The Academic Staff College (ASC), KLEF, Vaddeswaram Campus, in association with the Value Education Cell (VEC), KLEF, organized a Two-Day Capacity Building Programme on “Professional Conduct and Ethical Standards in the Workplace” for the Non-Teaching Staff from 01-05-2026 to 02-05-2026. The programme was conducted with the objective of strengthening workplace professionalism, ethical awareness, interpersonal behaviour, communication skills, and positive behavioural practices among non-teaching staff members.

Non-teaching staff play a vital role in the effective functioning of an educational institution. Their regular interaction with students, faculty, parents, visitors, and colleagues requires professional conduct, effective communication, emotional maturity, accountability, and a strong sense of institutional responsibility. Recognizing this important role, the programme was designed to create greater awareness of workplace values and to equip participants with practical skills that can contribute to a respectful, productive, and harmonious work environment.

The sessions were handled by Dr. B. Pavan Kumar, HOD, VEC, KLEF, along with Mr. A. Vijay Ratnam, Mrs. S. Sankari, Mr. G. Srinath, and Mrs. B. Sumani, Psychology Counsellors, VEC, KLEF. Their combined expertise provided participants with valuable perspectives on professional ethics, workplace behaviour, interpersonal relationships, emotional intelligence, stress management, communication, teamwork, and conflict resolution.

Around 190 non-teaching staff members participated in the programme and actively engaged in the sessions.

Programme Details and Sessions

The programme commenced with an overview of the importance of professional conduct and ethical standards in the workplace. The resource persons emphasized that professionalism extends beyond the completion of assigned duties and includes responsible behaviour, respect for others, accountability, discipline, effective communication, and adherence to institutional values.

Participants were sensitized to the importance of maintaining professionalism in day-to-day interactions. The sessions highlighted the need for employees to demonstrate punctuality, responsibility, courtesy, respect, and a positive attitude while carrying out their professional responsibilities. Particular emphasis was placed on the importance of treating colleagues, faculty members, students, and other stakeholders with dignity and mutual respect.

Professional Ethics and Workplace Discipline

One of the major components of the programme focused on professional ethics and workplace discipline. Participants were encouraged to understand the relationship between individual behaviour and the overall work culture of an institution.

The resource persons discussed the importance of:

- Responsibility and accountability in professional roles
- Punctuality and discipline
- Respectful workplace behaviour
- Maintaining confidentiality and professional boundaries

- Responsible discharge of assigned duties
- Following institutional procedures and expectations
- Developing a sense of ownership towards one's work

The sessions emphasized that ethical conduct is reflected not only in major professional decisions but also in everyday actions, communication, and interactions within the workplace.

Effective Communication and Interpersonal Behaviour

Another important area covered during the programme was effective communication and interpersonal behaviour. Participants were guided on how clear, respectful, and appropriate communication can prevent misunderstandings and contribute to positive workplace relationships.

Emotional Intelligence and Self-Awareness

The programme also introduced participants to the significance of emotional intelligence in the workplace. The sessions highlighted the importance of understanding one's own emotions and responding appropriately to the emotions of others.

Participants were encouraged to develop greater awareness of their emotional responses, particularly in situations involving pressure, disagreement, criticism, or challenging interpersonal interactions. The resource persons explained how self-awareness, emotional regulation, empathy, and appropriate responses can contribute to healthier professional relationships.

The discussions also emphasized the value of empathy and mutual understanding while dealing with colleagues and other stakeholders.

Stress Management and Positive Coping Practices

The resource persons addressed the challenges associated with workplace stress and highlighted the importance of adopting healthy coping mechanisms. Participants were sensitized to the effects that prolonged stress can have on professional performance, interpersonal relationships, and overall well-being.

The session encouraged participants to:

- Recognize common sources of workplace stress
- Develop healthy coping mechanisms
- Maintain emotional balance during demanding situations

- Avoid negative reactions under pressure
- Develop a positive approach towards workplace challenges
- The importance of maintaining a healthy balance between professional responsibilities and personal well-being was also emphasized.
- Teamwork and Collaborative Workplace Practices

The programme highlighted the importance of teamwork and collaboration in achieving institutional goals. Participants were encouraged to recognize that effective institutional functioning depends on cooperation and coordination among different individuals and teams.

Participants were encouraged to develop a collaborative mindset and contribute towards creating a positive workplace culture.

Conflict Resolution and Managing Difficult Situations

Another significant area of discussion was conflict resolution. The resource persons explained that disagreements and differences of opinion can occur in any workplace, but they need to be handled constructively and professionally.

Through practical examples and interactive discussions, participants were encouraged to approach workplace conflicts with patience, maturity, empathy, and a solution-oriented mindset.

Positive Behavioural Practices in the Workplace

The programme further emphasized the importance of developing positive behavioural practices in the workplace. The resource persons highlighted that every employee contributes to the institutional environment through their daily behaviour and interactions.

The discussions reinforced the idea that a positive workplace culture is built through consistent professional and ethical behaviour at the individual level.

Interactive Participation and Engagement

The programme was highly interactive, with participants actively engaging in discussions and sharing their experiences related to workplace situations. The resource persons used practical examples to connect the concepts of ethics, professionalism, communication, emotional intelligence, and conflict management with everyday workplace experiences.

Participants were encouraged to reflect on their own professional practices and identify ways in which communication, emotional awareness, teamwork, and ethical behaviour could be strengthened. The interactive nature of the sessions enabled participants to clarify their doubts and gain a better understanding of appropriate responses to challenging workplace situations.

The discussions also helped participants appreciate the importance of mutual respect, accountability, empathy, and responsible behaviour while interacting with faculty, students, colleagues, and other stakeholders.

Outcomes of the Programme

The Two-Day Capacity Building Programme contributed to enhancing the professional and interpersonal competencies of the participating non-teaching staff. At the end of the programme, participants gained greater awareness of:

The programme encouraged participants to apply these principles in their routine professional responsibilities and contribute towards a respectful, ethical, collaborative, and positive workplace environment.
