Report on Faculty Development Program on “Blockchain Technology: Enhancing Pedagogy, Practice, and Framework Proficiency”

Organized by: Academic Staff College, KLEF

Venue: Rose Hall, C-Block, KLEF, Vaddeswaram

Dates: 11th & 12th July 2025

Timings: 10:00 AM – 12:00 Noon & 2:00 PM – 4:00 PM

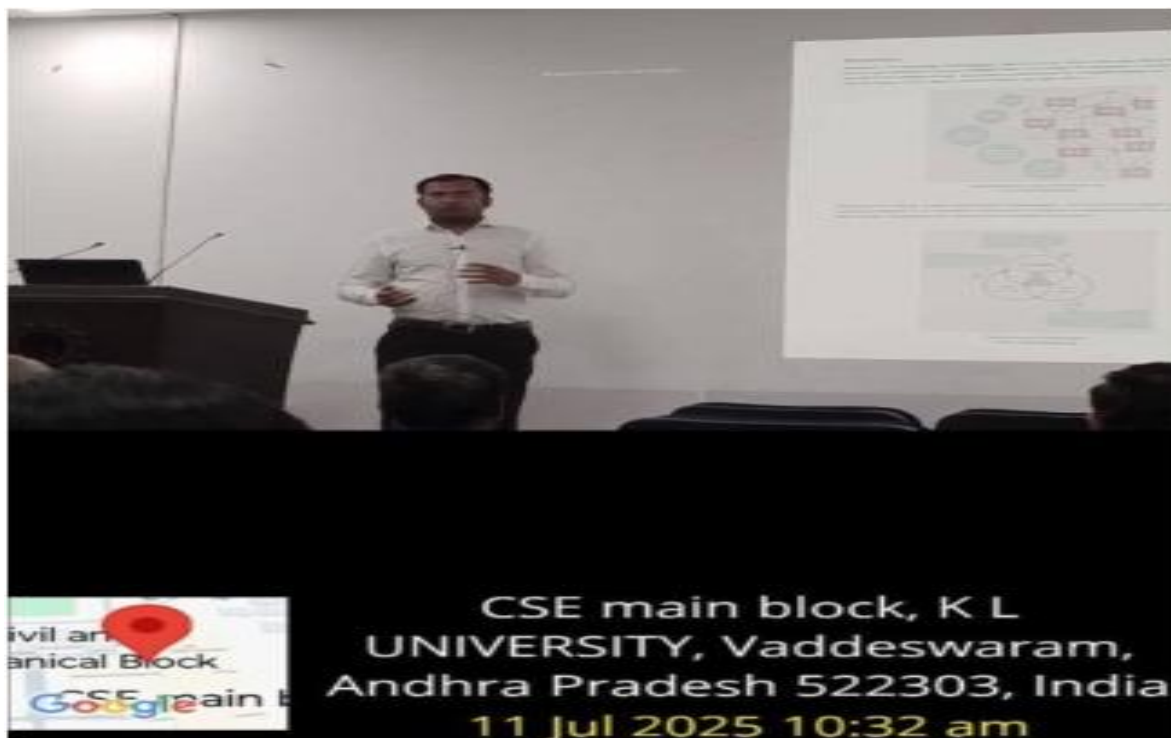

Participants: Cohort E09 Faculty Members

Resource Person: Mr. Abinav Garg, Co-Chair, Hyperledger Healthcare SIG

The Academic Staff College (ASC), KLEF organized a two-day Faculty Development Program on “Blockchain Technology: Enhancing Pedagogy, Practice, and Framework Proficiency” on 11th and 12th July 2025.

The programme was specially designed for Cohort E09 faculty members, with the objective of equipping them with a deeper understanding of blockchain technology, its practical implementations, and effective pedagogical strategies for teaching blockchain-related concepts. Recognizing blockchain as a transformative technology influencing multiple sectors such as finance, healthcare, governance, and supply chain management, the FDP sought to empower faculty members with the knowledge and tools required to integrate blockchain into academic curricula and research initiatives.

The programme combined conceptual discussions, interactive sessions, and hands-on technical demonstrations, thereby ensuring a balanced exposure to both the theoretical foundations and practical frameworks of blockchain technology. The sessions also encouraged participants to explore innovative teaching methodologies and interdisciplinary research opportunities associated with blockchain.

Mr. Abinav Garg addressing faculty

Objectives of the FDP

The FDP was organized with the following objectives:

- To introduce faculty to blockchain fundamentals, architecture, and consensus mechanisms.
- To explore innovative teaching strategies for blockchain education.
- To demonstrate practical blockchain use cases in academia and industry.
- To provide hands-on exposure to blockchain frameworks and smart contract development.
- To identify research opportunities and interdisciplinary applications of blockchain technology.

More than 25 faculty members actively participated in the programme. The interactive format of the sessions enabled participants to engage in thought-provoking discussions, technical explorations, and collaborative exchanges, thereby enriching the overall learning experience.

Day-2:

Drawing from his rich experience in both academic training and real-world blockchain implementations, Mr. Garg provided valuable insights into Hyperledger platforms, blockchain-based healthcare systems, and the practical challenges associated with blockchain adoption. His sessions effectively bridged the gap between academic learning and industry practice, offering participants a comprehensive understanding of blockchain technologies.

Participants listening to the lecture

Day-2:

The opening session provided an overview of the FDP objectives and emphasized the importance of integrating emerging technologies such as blockchain into modern engineering education. Mr. Abinav Garg introduced the participants to the foundations of blockchain technology, covering topics such as: Evolution and history of blockchain, Core characteristics including decentralization, transparency, immutability, and trustless systems, Structural components of blockchain networks including blocks, transactions, hashing, and distributed ledgers.

This session laid a strong conceptual foundation for understanding blockchain systems and their transformative potential.

The final session addressed pedagogical frameworks and future research opportunities in blockchain technology.

Mr. Garg discussed effective teaching strategies for blockchain education, emphasizing:

- project-based learning
- interdisciplinary collaboration
- real-world problem-solving approaches.

The Faculty Development Programme on “Blockchain Technology: Enhancing Pedagogy, Practice, and Framework Proficiency” successfully fulfilled its objective of strengthening faculty capabilities in emerging blockchain technologies and modern pedagogical practices.
